Many aspects of the daily to-do list for us as students at the Harrison College of Pharmacy are refined in ways that uniquely fit the piece of our own personal puzzles: time management, study habits, and staying organized to name a few. However, one thing that remains at the core of what we value most, no matter the stage of life or preference of Quizlet over Kahoot, is the community we find among one another. As the Executive Student Council (ESC) Vice President of the Harrison College of Pharmacy, I would thoughtfully embody and encourage this vital aspect of our school with every task completed. As students are navigating the individual details of their own personal journey at the Harrison College of Pharmacy, it would be my joy to give the student body confidence knowing that their ESC Vice President sees the relationships we foster among one another as the gift it truly is. With every task that I am given I can guarantee it will be taken on with full effort, motivation, and compassion. War Eagle!
