My name is Caroline Fahy, and I am thrilled to participate in “How ‘Bout Thach” for Auburn’s College of Liberal Arts. The Student Government Association is an impactful organization on Auburn’s campus because its representatives listen to the concerns of Auburn students to make the university the best it can be. As the President of the CLA student council, I plan to listen to the students' ideas in my college to ensure their academic success and satisfaction.

If elected, the “How ‘Bout Thach” ticket has three main objectives as the voice for Auburn’s CLA. First, we wish to improve the communication between students, faculty, and other members of SGA. We plan to enforce interaction between CLA and SGA by utilizing office hours and social media platforms.

Auburn’s CLA has multiple differing majors, which causes a detachment between students and faculty. The “How ‘Bout Thach” ticket plans to enforce relationships between the students and faculty members who feel a disconnection between themselves and the college to which they belong.

Lastly, “How ‘Bout Thach” wants overall success for the entirety of Auburn’s campus, and this starts with giving power to student’s voices. Auburn’s SGA must consist of dedicated individuals who desire to improve Auburn’s atmosphere for students. I look forward to hearing more about your requests and desires and would love your support on February 7th.
